. A: The Samsung E2222 series requires the use of the Samsung's Samsung USB Driver (available from the manufacturer). To use the USB Driver, a computer first needs to be set to enable the USB

Type B. The steps to enable the USB Type B are as follows: On the computer's Control Panel, click Hardware and Sound. Click Change Device Settings. Click Set Up Port Stuff on the Hardware tab. Click Ports on the Connect tab. Click the plus (+) icon to open the ports dialog box. Select USB 2.0 (Universal Serial Bus) from the list of ports. Click the drop-down arrow next to the Connector Port field and select Type B from the list. Click Apply and OK. Now that the

USB Type B is enabled, you can install the Samsung USB Driver. The steps to install the USB Driver are as follows: On the computer's Control Panel, click Programs. Click Turn Windows Features On or Off on the Uninstall/Change list. Click Turn Windows Features On. Click Add or Remove. Click USB Storage Devices. Click Installed Programs. Click the Samsung USB Driver tab. Click Next. Follow the prompts to complete the installation. Note: The USB driver installation may not be finished if the Install option is grayed out. To finish the installation, you have to turn off the computer and restart it, then turn on the computer again. After the installation has completed, the USB driver is automatically enabled. Once the USB driver is installed, you can upload your files to your Android phone with a cable that uses a Mini USB connector to connect the device. The E2222 Samsung has an external microSD card slot. Before plugging in your card, you must ensure that
